How in the hell is a guy supposed to get from CA to DC on the 6th via an RV?

posted 21 minutes ago by beefromancer +19 / -0

A friend has an RV and wants to road trip it up all the way from California, but large vehicle logistics on the east coast isn't my greatest strength. Obviously we can't just park the RV in DC somewhere and walk to the capitol. I'm hoping someone has already looked into this and can provide some advice for what to do after showing up in the greater DC area at the end of a very long road trip.

Walmart parking lots welcome RVs across the nation. That was a big thing for Sam Walton. Welcoming RVs and truckers to use their parking lots over night

Put LGBTQXYZLMNOP stickers, Bernie flags, and other associated stuff all over the RV. You'll be welcomed with open arms.

We're fleeing communism, not bringing it with us.

I have friends that have an RV and they find places to park it. Look for the bus parking at any attraction. Without tourism, nearly 300,000 DC households would have to contribute an additional $2,844 per household in taxes in order to maintain the current level of tax receipts. Leisure travelers accounted for 61% of visitors and 43% of spending. There are a lot of places to park.

Park at a train station, large parking lots, and ride the train in.

Seems like you pretty much have to go to Baltimore to get onto a train headed for DC, is that correct? Seems like the opposite direction from what we plan to be arriving from.

You need to go 1-70 all the way. About 3-4 days and see this great country

I'm so jealous

Swriously though, look at the metro and park and rides, theres plenty of places you can park the rv. Maybe rent a car so you're not at the mercy of the metro.

Although the metro is pretty nice and easy to navigate without worrying about car parking. It would be weird if the Metro was shut down on the 6th. That would be a bummer.

RVs can park at walmart by store policy. Fyi. Many road dogs do a tour of America from walmart parking lot to walmart parking lot, staying for a week at a time.

Whatever you do, don't go through Nashville playing "Downtown."
